

Wilbur's Lookout

A supermarket grows in Belltown. This is a humongous turning point for our neighborhood.

Some of our smaller grocery stores have, in the past, expanded, but not enough.

A supermarket was proposed in the late '80s for Second Avenue and Pike Street, only to be blocked by the Pike Place Market.

But nothing will stop "2200 Westlake," because PAUL ALLEN IS BEHIND IT. The new store will be located at the intersections of Blanchard, Westlake and Denny, across the street from Cornish School of the Arts.

Construction is already under way, and the old buildings on the site have been demolished. Being one who chooses not to have a car, it will be great to do all my shopping on this side of Denny! Along with the planned Monorail station on Bell Street, this is gonna be one helluva walkable, sophisticated joint!
